PREFACE.

Thomas Olcott, whose descendants in the male line, to and including the seventh generation,—in the female line, to and including the third generation; and in the lines of the female branches from the male lines, to and including the children of each of the first of said branches, are traced in the following pages, was among the first settlers of the town of Hartford, and one of the founders of the trade and commerce of the Colony of Connecticut. From what part of England he emigrated, or what year he arrived in this country, is not ascertained. There is reason to believe he was one of the "goodly company" of men, women and children, who, in June, 1635, left Newtown, (now Cambridge,) and other settlements on the sea board of Massachusetts, to plant a new colony on "the delightful banks" of the Connecticut. Their route lay through the wilderness, in nearly the present direction of the Western Railroad, 'till they reached the mouth of Chiccopee river, and hence down the banks of the Connecticut, to the spot where in the autumn before, the settlement of what is now Hartford, but then called Suckiauge, was commenced. Through the agencies which that company, and others similarly constituted, embraced,—from the seed, peculiar and precious, which they scattered over the bosom of the wilderness,—what a change has been wrought in the country which they traversed, and in the spot where they rested from their pilgrimage, only to enter upon the severer, ever recurring toils and trials of a pioneer life! The forests whose tangled depths they penetrated by day with slow and toilesome progress, and in whose shadow they rested by night, with savage beasts and more savage men, have given place to the cultivated fields, orchards, homesteads and prosperous villages of civilized man. The streams which they forded, and the swamps which they crossed with so much risk and difficulty, are now spanned by arches of stone or bridges of iron. Avenues of communication now stretch across hills and valleys, which they passed with weary footsteps, so that the traveller between the extremes of their journey can now glide as on the wings of the wind, without fatigue, in less than one third the number of hours, that it took them days and nights to accomplish. And over the meadows and uplands, the waters and forests of their early settlement, a change no less wonderful and beneficent has passed. The rude tillage and rude wigwam, the simple canoe and wandering habits of the savage, have given place to the triumphs of agriculture, commerce, and the arts; to free institutions of government,—to the blessings of religion, education and christian charity—to all the fruits of an advanced and advancing civilization. Principles and institutions for which the best blood of Europe has been shed, and shed in vain, were acknowledged here in the outset of our history, and sprang up from seed sown by our fathers. We may well be proud of such an ancestry. These rich blessings, individual, social and civil, which we are now enjoying, are not the results of happy accident—they are the legitimate fruits of the character, the lives, and the teachings of the first settlers of our state. These settlers came here under the guidance of men of pure and fervent piety; of elevated social position and learning in their own country; of large estates, and larger hearts. They came here already gathered into families, with all the pledges and ties which that relation alone can give and inspire. They were all men of religious principles, at a period when to hold fast to religious opinions cost something—even banishment from home, and the trials of life on the ocean and in the wilderness. They were men of varied capacities of usefulness. There were divines, the seal of whose ministry was on the souls they had saved. There were magistrates trained to varied offices of state, and ripe for the highest official trusts at home, if they had chosen to remain there. There were men skilled in the practical pursuits of agriculture, commerce and mechanic arts. Once here, each seemed to find his appropriate sphere of useful labor, and all conspired together with one mind and one heart, to convert the wilderness into the happy homes of civilized man; and as the crowning glory of such homes, there were among them women of education, prudence, and piety, fit to be the wives of such men, and the mothers of a noble race.

Mr. Olcott had been educated in Europe a merchant, and brought with him the experience and fruits of successful enterprise. In common with Edward Hopkins, Richard Lord, William Whiting and others, he engaged in trade, for which the Connecticut was supposed to afford great facilities, especially in the traffic in furs. The following contract of Mr. Olcott, is taken from the early records of the Colony, on which, by early laws, such agreements were ordered to be recorded.

This Bill Byndeth me Thomas Olcott, of Hartford, in New England, to pay or cause to be paid unto Mr. Jacob Hayes, of Manators, the sum of six thousand eight hundred and sixty pounds of good Virginiah Tobaccko, such as Dutchmen do take, sometime in December next, in some convenient places either at Nansemond or Newberts Newes, and in witness whereof I have set my hand, (the said Thomas Olcott is to allowe halfe the casck and the said Jacob Hayes is to pay for the other half,) this 19th of July, 1650.

Witness. THOMAS OLCOTT.

RICHARD LORD.
BRAY ROSSETER. Vera Copia: Pr: JOHN CULLICK.

The following document, found also on the Colony Records, is copied in this connection, mainly because, being signed by Mr. Olcott, it enables us to give his autograph, and settle the orthography of his name, which is sometimes wrongly spelt with an A instead of an O.

APRIL 22th, 1650.

Whereas Mr. Thomas Olcott of Hartford, doth attache pt. of the Estate of William Cross, of Fairfield to the value of 60 pounds sterling, the said Mr. Olcott doth acknowledge himself bound to this Commonwealth in a rezognizance of one hundred pounds sterling that he will prosecute the action agt. the said Cross at the next particular Court to be held in Hartford which will be upon the 15th day of the next month, and satisfie all damage in case he makes not his plea good.

Thomas Olcott

Mr. Olcott first located himself on a lot on the east side of the Public (now State House) Square, on which the American Hotel now stands. He subsequently became the purchaser of one of the lots assigned to Edward Hopkins in the original distribution of the town among the first settlers. This lot comprised the whole square fronting on Main street, and bounded by Pearl, Trumbull and Asylum streets. On the southeast corner he erected a dwelling for his own occupation, which continued in the possession of his family for several generations. It is known to many now living as the "Nevens House" (the wing on the South having been added by Mr. Robert Nevins) and was demolished in 1824 to make room for the large block known as Union Hall. This house lot of Mr. Olcott, which together with his own and another dwelling house that stood thereon, was apprized at sixty pounds, at the time of his death, is now worth one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars. It is now covered by the Phœnix Bank, blocks of stores and other buildings, of an aggregate value of not less than the value of the land. The old well in the rear of Union Hall was excavated by Mr. Olcott as an appurtenance to his house.

Mr. Olcott died in 1654, aged about forty-five years, leaving a widow, three sons and two daughters. He disposed of his property by will, the original of which cannot be found amongst the ancient papers of the Probate Office, nor is there any copy on record. The tenor of the will appears from a written agreement, entered into by and between his widow (who with his son Thomas, was made joint executor,) and the children, respecting a distribution in part of the estates, which is on record.

The inventory of the estate is a curious document, as throwing light on the means, and domestic arrangement of one of the principal families of the town, within twenty years of its first settlement.

An Inventory of houses, lands, goodes, chattells, debts of Tho: Olcott, deasesd, as at the present yt. appears to us whose names are subcrbde to ye. sd. Inventory, this 13th Febry. 1654.

In addition to the property above inventoried, there were divers tracts of land situated in Hartford and Wethersfield, which passed into the hands of the sons immediately on the decease of Mr. Olcott, probably by provisions in his will, which cannot now be found.

Mrs. Olcott,* by the death of her husband, was left with the man-

* NOTE. In the absence of all positive evidence as to the maiden name of Mrs. Olcott, or the place of her residence in England, it may be safe to conjecture that she was a Porter from London, from the following circumstance. On the death of Mr. David Porter, of London, who was drowned in the river, while on a visit to his friends in the colony, administration was granted to Mrs. Olcott, as appears from the following entry on the records of the county court.

At a County Court, December 5, 1678, held at Hartford.

An Inventory of the Estate of David Porter, of London, was exhibited in Court, and oath made by Mr. Thomas Olcott that there was a true presentment of the estate of the deceased to the appraisers; and if more come to hand, he will cause it to be added to the Inventory; and the Court granted administration on the Estate to Mrs. Abigail Olcott to pay the just debts and to reserve the remainder of the estate in her hands till his mother or brother shall order the dispose of it, or send for it:—it being granted to them by the Court, they being next of kin to the deceased.

The following quaint exhibit of expenses attending the funeral of Mr. Porter, shows that a custom more honored in the breach than in the observance, then prevailed in the colony.

agement of a large estate, and the cares of the family, to which she seemed fully equal. From the records of the towns of Hartford, Wethersfield and Windsor, in this colony, and of Springfield in Massachusetts, she appears to have carried on the business of her husband like one "to the manner born." She bought, let, and sold lands, loaned money on mortgage security, made contracts for delivering goods, and like the virtuous woman described by Solomon, "she perceiveth that her merchandise was good"; "she layeth her hands to the spindle, and her hands hold the distaff"; "she looketh well to the ways of her household, and eateth not the bread of idleness; HER OWN WORKS PRAISETH HER IN THE GATES." She died May 26, 1693, aged 78 years, leaving a will of which the following is a copy.

I, Abigail Olcott, of Hartford, being at present of good understanding and memory, blessed be God, do consider that I am aged, and the shadows of the evening are come upon me, and therefore, the counsel of the Prophet,—"Set thy house in order," is very seasonable for me. In obedience thereto, first, I do commit my soul to God in Jesus Christ, trusting through his mercy, my sins are washed away in his blood, and that through his righteousness, I shall be accepted of the Father, and obtain a glorious ressurrection;—and my body I commit to the earth, to be buried in a comely decent manner, in the common burying place. And for that estate the Lord hath blessed me with, after my just debts and funeral charges are contented and paid, I do give and bequeath the same as followeth. I have formerly given my son Thomas, a piece of gold, I give my son John, a ten shilling piece of gold, and to my son Samuel and daughter Elizabeth Hyde, I give my biggest piece of gold, to be divided between them. I also, give to my daughter Hyde, my two black gowns, my mohair petticoat, my silk cloak, my wearing linen, a dozen diaper napkins and a dozen of holland napkins; and to my daughter-in-law, Sarah, I give my cloth gown, cloth petticoat and serge cloak. It is my will that the fifty pounds I gave to Thomas and Mary, my grand-children, by a former writing, shall be paid out of such debts as are due to me. And the rest of my estate, both real and personal, I give and bequeath the same, to my sons, Thomas, Samuel and John, and my daughter, Elizabeth Hyde, to be divided equally to them, except my son John, who is to have a double share, the rest of my children having formerly received from me considerable. And what I give to my children, I give it to them and the heirs of their bodies now living,—save only that which I give to my son John by this will, is to him and his heirs forever. Finally, I do, in the fear of God, command my children to know, fear and serve the God of their father, that so the blessing of the covenant may be their portion when I shall be gathered to my fathers; and desire, that they may live in love and peace one with another, that the God of love and peace may bless them.

I do hereby renounce and make null all former wills by me made, by word or writing, and declare this to be my last will and testament, and do constitute and appoint my beloved sons Thomas and John Olcott to be Executors thereof. And if any difference should arise about the distribution of my Estate, amongst my children, I wholly refer the determination thereof to my loving friends Col. John Allyn and Doctor Thomas Hooker, to whom I refer my children for to take advice and counsel in any thing that shall arise of difficulty in their affairs. And for the confirmation hereof, I hereunto set my hand and affix my seal, this 12th day of January, 1692.

ABIGAIL OLCOTT. L. S.

Signed, sealed and declared in the presence and witness of

John Allyn:
Richard Edwards.

The following article is likewise found on the Colony Records, and is copied as showing Mrs. Olcott's method of doing business. By this writing, it would appear that Mrs. Olcott had made a loan to "Mr. Roger Nuton," (Rev. Roger Newton,* first minister of Farmington;) and that when payment was offered, the evidence of the debt could not be found, but that she received the money, and gave this writing as a testimony that the debt had been paid.

These pesents Testifieth, that I, Abigail Olcott, of Hartford, in ye jurisdiction of Connecticut, doe acknowledg myself to be fully satisfyed for ye remaining part of a Bill of 25£ that was to be payd to me by Mr. Roger Nuton, and have I say, received full sattisfaction from Wm: Lewis, Jun. for what he was to pay of it, and likewise acquit Mr. Roger Nuton and Wm. Lewis both of any further demands about that bill, and if I finde it, to returne ye bill to one of them,—as witness my hand this 29th of March, 1660.

ABIGAIL OLCOTT.

Vera Copia. John Allyn, Secry.

The sons of Mr. Olcott continued to reside in Hartford, as farmers, and were all gentlemen of consideration in the colony. On the 20th of May, 1658, Thomas Olcott, and on the 12th of the same month, 1664, Samuel Olcott, took the oath of allegiance to the colony, on being admitted as freemen, as prescribed by the General Court April 6, 1640. In this oath there is not the slightest recognition of the authority of Parliament, nor indeed is there any thing in the laws

* Rev. Roger Newton here referred to, afterwards went to Milford, (Con.) and his place was filled at Farmington, by Mr. Samuel Hooker, son of Rev. Thomas Hooker, first minister of Hartford. The following transcript from the account book of William Pynchon, one of the first settlers of Springfield, (Mass.) and the first signer of the Plantation Covenant of that town, shows the liberal contributions which individuals were willing to make for the support of the gospel ministry, even in towns distant from their own residence. The entry is in the hand writing of John Pynchon, the son, and the original document in the possession of the Hon. Oliver B. Morris, of Springfield.

John Olcott, of Hartford, (Con.) son of Thomas Olcott, the Settler, was married to Mary Welles, widow of Thomas Welles, late of said Hartford, dec., a grandson of Thomas Welles, one of the first settlers of said town, in the line of his son Thomas, in 1695. She was the daughter, by his second wife, of John Blackleach, Jun., of said Hartford, merchant, who died September 9, 1703, aged 77. By her first husband she had children, Thomas, born October 16, 1690, and John, born December 15, 1693.

Mrs. Mary Olcott, alias Welles, survived her second husband, and was married a third time, viz: to Capt. Joseph Wadsworth, celebrated in history as the chief actor in the fearful scene respecting the Charter of the Colony, in the time of Sir Edmund Andros.

It is worthy of remark, that Mr. John Olcott and Capt. Joseph Wadsworth, the second and third husbands of this lady, were the appraisers of the Estate of her first husband.

Capt. Joseph Wadsworth was the son of William Wadsworth, one of the first settlers of Hartford, by his second wife, Elizabeth, the sister of the Rev. Samuel Stone, one of said settlers, and successor in the ministry to the Rev. Thomas Hooker, the first minister of Hartford. William Wadsworth is the ancestor of Daniel Wadsworth, Esqr. of this city,—of the Messrs. Wadsworth, of Geneseo, (New-York,) and of most, if not all those persons, who bear his name in this country. Capt. Joseph Wadsworth died in 1731. From an affidavit of his, appended to an inventory of the estate of Thomas Stoughton, of Windsor, (who married his sister,) dated March 6, 1686, he was, at that time, 36 years of age, which would give 1650, as the year of his birth, and make him 81 years of age at the time of his death.

Mr. Caleb Watson was born in Roxbury, (Mass.) in June, 1641, graduated at Harvard College in 1661, and was subsequently, for several years, an instructor of youth in Hartford.

APPENDIX.

The Indian name of Hartford was Sukiauge. The settlers first named it Newtown, from the place of their residence in Massachusetts; but in February, 1637, they gave it the present name of Hartford. The place was originally purchasad by Mr. Stone and Mr. William Goodwin, of Sunckquasson, the Indian chief and proprietor of the soil, who afterwards renewed the sale to John Haynes, and others, and enlarged the boundaries of his grant. The original deeds were lost or carried away, and were renewed by the heirs and successors of Sunckquasson, in 1670. The following is a true copy, from the records of the last

RENEWAL DEED.

"Whereas our predecessor Sunckquasson, sachem of Suckiage, alias Hartford, did about the yeare sixteen hundred thirty six, by a writeing under his hand, pass over unto Mr. Samuel Stone and Mr. Wm. Goodwin, in the behalfe of the present proprietors and owners of the lands belonging to the township of Hartford, all that part of his country from a tree marked N. F. which is the divident between Hartford and Wethersfield—we say from the afoarsayd tree on the south, till it meet with Windsor bounds on the north, and from the great river on the east, the whole bredth to run into the wilderness towards the west full six miles, which is to the place where Hartford and Farmington bounds meet; which grant of Sunckquasson, as occasion hath been, was by him renewed to the honoured John Haines, Esqr. and other the first magistrates of this place, and enlarged to the westward so far as his country went; which enlargement as well as his former grant was made in presence of many of the natives of the place and English inhabitants; and severall yeares after, about the time of the planting of Farmington in the yeare one thousand six hundred and forty, in a writeing made between the English and Pethus the sachem or gentleman of that place, there is a full mention of the afoarsayd Sunckquasson his grant of his country to the magistrates of this place, which grant we are privy too; and we being the onely successors of Sunckquasson and proprietors (before the forementioned sale) of the lands belonging to the township of Hartford on the west side of the great river, being desired to confirm and pass over all our right and interest in the afoarsayd lands to the present possessors of them, they informeing us that those writeings made by Sunckquasson before recited are at present out of the way, knowing what our predecessor hath done, and what consideretion he hath received for the same,—
